Man Did Not Know They Were Stolen

Arraigned at the Sunshine court this week on a charge of receiving stolen goods, manager of the Seaholme Service Station Claude Steinhardt, was acquitted when the bench, comprising Messrs T. Barclay and F. Grundy J'sP, were satisfied he did not know the articles were stolen.

The charge involved two sets of wheel and rims and Steinhardt, of 20 Emu Avenue, entered a plea of not guilty.

Giving evidence for the crown John Richard McCann told the court he left his station wagon parked outside a Parkville motel on January 18 this year. During the night the vehicle was stolen and some 400 sets of wheel rims and other parts were not recovered.

On February 7 he saw two sets of rims in the window of the Seaholme Service Station.

The trims had been purchased by William Henry Knell, of Altona, from his brother in law, Norman Ernest Crees, of Maidstone, and later sold to Steinhardt for £6. Steinhardt had asked if they were stolen and he assured him they were not. Later in the same court, Crees of 13 Hargreaves Street, Braybrook, was released on a £10 bond to be of good behaviour for six months on a similar charge.

DID NOT GIVE EVIDENCE AGAINST HUSBAND

A woman who laid a charge against her husband and then did not appear in court to give evidence, was criticised by Mr Prowse SM, "these people cause a great deal of trouble and waste time," he said.

Police prosecutor, Senior Constable Kevin Plover of the Williamstown police, said he had a written statement in which the husband had made certain admissions and Mr Prowse then announced he would hear the police evidence.

Defendant, Kevin Secary was charged with assaulting his wife with a heavy glass ash tray.

Extending leniency, Mr Prowse adjourned the case to a date to be fixed, not exceeding 12 weeks.

Constable Jell told the court he interviewed Secary at the Williamstown police station at 1.30 am. Defendant told him he had thrown the ash tray but did not think it would hit his wife. He threw it because he thought his wife was carrying on with another man.

Senior Const. Plover: It is alleged that you said if you caught your wife you would kill her.

Defendant: I said that to the gentleman who came to the police station with us.

In his evidence Secary told the court he threw the ash tray because he did not like the attention being paid to his wife by another man who was drinking with them on the bed in their room.

In his evidence Secary told said any person who acts dangerously must accept the blame. You apparently threw the ash tray not caring a great deal about where it went.

He then adjourned the case.

TO PAY ARREARS

The story of a divided family caused by inadequate housing was told to Williamstown court this week when the Children's Welfare Department sued for maintenance arrears for a child who had been declared a ward of the State on January 24 this year.

Before the court was Philip Hackett, Cecil Street, Williamstown, who was ordered to pay £3 weekly for the maintenance of his daughter.

Questioned on his assets by the prosecuting officer Hackett said he had no assets but did have several debts he was paying off. They included £15 to the grocer, £30 for clothes, for his wife and £20 on a TV set which had been returned.

In reply to a question on his drinking habits Hackett said he spent £2-£3 weekly on beer but in future would be spending nothing.

He said his wife had returned to Adelaide to her people because of the unsatisfactory housing situation. He had fallen into arrears for maintenance of his child because he had been out of work because of illness.

Just Happy

Joseph Ceni who had been celebrating more than somewhat on the night of April 5 ultimately finished in the gutter in Railway Street, Altona at 1 am.

Defendant who pleaded not guilty, was charged with being drunk and disorderly and was convicted and discharged.

Constable Graham Johnson told the court that as a result of a telephone call he went Railway Street, Altona, where he saw defendant lying in the gutter. He was singing out and was in a drunken condition.

In reply to Mr R. Prowse SM, defendant said he had one drink after another.

Mr Prowse: Yes that's what does it. One drink after another. Why were you lying in the gutter?

Defendant: Because I was drunk. I'll never have another drink.

TRUANCY CHARGES

A mother of a high school girl was fined £2 on each of three charges of failing to send her daughter to school.

The mother, Ellen Cardwell, of Williamstown Migrant Hostel, has been fined before on similar charges.

The child is a pupil of Williamstown High School.

Investigation of Coal Dust

To collate evidence in the West Newport coal dust nuisance case, senior health inspector of the City of Williamstown will carry out a close inspection over the next three months so that evidence gathered in the past can be related to the present situation.

As a result of a recent conference at Altona between the municipalities of Williamstown, Footscray and Altona, Mr K. H. Gifford, barrister for Altona Shire, is to submit an opinion in writing preparatory to taking the issue to court.

Reporting to the last meeting of the Williamstown City Council, Town Clerk, Mr Morley, told councillors:

"I suggest the logical procedure at this stage is for our senior health inspector to carry out an investigation over the next three months to ascertain the extent to which persons resident in Williamstown near the fuel depot, are affected."

It Served Him Right

A Seaholme motorist who was intercepted in Kororoit Creek road exceeding the 30 mph limit is alleged to have told motor cycle policeman, Const. Neville Nunn, "it serves me right it will teach me a lesson."

It did too because it cost him ten pounds in Williamstown Police Court this week.

The man, Michael Ellis, of 9 Gloucester Street, Seaholme, was traveling west at 55.9 mph in Kororoit Creek Road.

Const. Nunn told the court there was a fair amount of traffic about at the time 6.5 p.m.

Also fined for exceeding the 30 mph limit was Robert Barbuto, of 29 Anderson Street, Yarraville, who was intercepted travelling north in Melbourne Road at 50 mph on Sunday, 6th December.

Const. Leslie, of Williamstown said it was two miles before he could overtake defendant.

Luigi Tibaldi was fined £2 for travelling north in Melbourne Road without head lamps.

For double parking in Ferguson Street, Williamstown, Emon O'Sullivan was fined £3.

Const. Porter, of Williamstown, said accused told him he was in a hurry. He was parked for 9 minutes and was causing an obstruction to traffic. Plenty of parking space was available on the opposite side of the street, the Constable stated.

Practice Match

Last Sunday played a practice match against West Footscray who play in the Footscray District League.

At the commencement the game was very uneven.

Of the old players first to show out was Max Stephens, who by his clever baulking and turning, showed that he will be a force to be reckoned with.

It will not be long before Harry Stiles regains form.

In the second quarter Bill Devereaux in the centre, John Devereaux at full forward and Robert Stephenson on a half back flank repeatedly turned the ball back into the attacking zone.

In the third quarter W. Devereaux was replaced by Richard Buckingham, a school teacher from Ballarat, who immediately showed that he would be an asset.

Despite nervousness three young lads played really well in the third quarter. They were Barry Locke, Derek York and John Neal.

Messrs N. Trickey and S.
Jensen are to be complimented on the manner in which they controlled the game.

Membership tickets are now on sale.

Next committee meeting is to be held on April 12.

ALTONA TABLE TENNIS

The four teams made a fairly good start in first matches of the season last week.

A team had a bye.

A team No 2, R. Blair, J.
Kaye, A. Dyall, T. Veiss played Argus-Polsons winning 10 rubbers to one.

No 1 team is regarded as a definite premiership possibility.
No 2 team although not possessing players of the same calibre, could cause a few surprises.

B2 team was narrowly defeated 6-5 in the match against Warren and Brown. Players are
P. Lamb, R. Weiland, T. Cox,
G. Hewitt, C. Milliche.

Girls team D2, F. Frood, L.
Cox, D. Walsh and M. Laird, were defeated 8-3.

The Robert Fleming perpetual trophy for the outstanding sportsman of the association is being held in conjunction with the winter pennant. The award will be decided on the votes of team captains for members of opposing teams.

liamstown District Finals

Gastric Upsets in Young Children

By R. and W. FRAZER

There are many kinds of infections of the stomach which cause pain, sometimes with bowel looseness or vomiting or both. It is not uncommon for several members of a family to be affected in this way at the same time.

Some kind of infectious organism may cause this condition or the trouble may originate in a particular food which has been eaten which is contaminated in some way by bacteria.

"Food poisoning" is the term used rather loosely to describe upsets caused by contamination of food. Especially in warm weather such trouble is likely to be encountered.

Foods most liable to this kind of contamination are those containing milk, custard or cream and fish or poultry which have been allowed to remain out of the refrigerator for some time after being prepared. It is very rarely that any such trouble is experienced with food that has been recently cooked because the kinds of bacteria which cause it are destroyed by cooking.

A rather frequent cause of what is termed food poisoning may arise from home canned or bottled fruits and vegetables.

Any summary of the causes of gastric upsets in children would be incomplete if intestinal parasites were not mentioned. Worms cause far more cases of gastric upsets than is generally realised.

A statement by a spokesman for a large Australian Children's hospital last year said that the great majority of patients in that institution were found to be suffering from this kind of infestation.

While it would not be correct to imply that in every case the presence of worms will cause stomach ache or acute gastric disturbance there is no doubt that it may do so.

When such infestation is suspected it is worthwhile seeking advice on the matter because new remedies make the problem much easier of solution than used to be the case.

Another cause of gastric upsets in young children undoubtedly is the existence of tension at meal times. For example the child apprehensive about school or excited about some imminent pleasure he is to enjoy, or the child who is worried about something wrong he has done that may be found out, will be tense; the ideal condition of relaxation required for normal digestion may be missing. Such emotions and fears can affect the stomach and intestines and result in lack of appetite and definite gastric disturbance.

The possibility that a particular child may have an idiosyncrasy to a particular food must not be lost sight of in considering the causes of gastric upsets in young children.

Occasionally what is called Chronic Starch Indigestion occurs in children especially between the ages of one and three years. When it does occur a substantial alteration in the whole diet may be required so that a doctor's advice in every case is needed.

In this article so far emphasis has been placed on the more serious possibilities which may attend gastric upsets in young children. It is right to stress the need for care in these matters.

Many cases of gastric upsets in young children stem from causes that are not dangerous and which can be easily dealt with.

In many instances it is quite obvious that a child is upset because of having eaten too much of a particular food or because of some habit of sluggishness or laziness of elimination.

In these cases which may occur fairly often in the early years of a child's life the use of a mild corrective and some reduction for a while of the amount of food given is all that is required.

If the use of the ordinary helpful foods such as fruit juices, prunes, green vegetables and so on, plus plenty of water does not suffice then we suggest that a preparation designed especially for young children be used.

INFALAX is a preparation based on the active principles of fresh prunes and is merely a concentrated form of prune principles prepared in a cherry flavored syrup. It is pleasant, easy to give and it is effective without being severe or habit forming.
